GMA still for Gibo, says Palace

By Christine V. Espinosa, Gil C. Cabanog Jr. and Nikko Diaz

MALACANANG YESTERDAY BOUGHT to distance President Macapagal-Arroyo from Sen. Manuel Villar amid speculation that she was backing the Macapagal-Arroyo presidential candidate instead of the administration's own standard-bearer.

Gary Olivas, deputy presidential spokesperson, said Ms. Arroyo remained a strong supporter of former Defense Secretary Gilbert "Gibo" Teodoro, the presidential candidate of the ruling Liberal Party (LP).

PDI readers send online questions

By John Nery

HUNDREDS OF INQUIRER and Inquirer.net readers using an online form have sent in questions they want candidates to answer today during what is touted to be the toughest presidential debate ahead of the May 10 elections.

The 2,000th anniversary of the Philippines Theater in Diliman, Quezon City, is expected to be postponed, judging from the lack of returned tickets for the program's first-ever presidential debate in its 24 years of existence. The debate is scheduled to start at 10 a.m.

Kin of 43 health workers go to SC

By Nancy Canajip, Maricar Claus, Inquirer Staff Writers and Nikko Diaz

RELATIVES AND COLLEAGUES OF 43 people, including two doctors, a nurse and a midwife, are set to file petitions for writs of amparo and habeas corpus before the Supreme Court today for what they called illegal arrests of the health workers by a joint team of the military and police in Marikina, Rizal.

The military said it wanted up the health workers on Saturday because of their alleged links with the communist New People's Army (NPA).

"We will file a case for them [the authorities] to produce and release them," said the group.

Villar above rules of Senate on disciplinary action

By Armando Dorado

CHARGES AGAINST FOUR MEMBERS of Parliament in Britain for allegedly defaming parliamentarianism are leading the foundations of the United Kingdom's political system.

The political storm over the "Villanueva claim" of the MP's involved three from the ruling Labor Party and one from the Tory Party.

The storm erupted at the same time that the Philippine Senate last week passed a resolution that has great precedents as a landmark of democracy. It is split over a report of its top committee finding that one of its senior members, Manuel Villar, is guilty of unethical conduct in relation to the C-6 road extension project.

The Senate committee of the whole, which includes 22 senators, has recommended the censure of Villar for transgression of his moral and corporate associations with the project.

The circumstances surrounding the charges against the four British MPs are different from those surrounding the case against Villar, but these essentially involve ethical issues.

The purpose of this report is to illustrate the contrasting manner by which the British Parliament, the mother of all parliaments, and the Philippine Senate are handling cases involving members.

'Snowmageddon' blankets US capital in white

WASHINGTON—SEEDS LAUNCHED THE RE-creating Pool along the National Mall, where used the steps of the Lincoln Memorial for a slope. Hundreds crowded Dupont Circle for a snowed light organized event, while elsewhere the capital's famed avenues were all but deserted.

Washington took on a surreal, almost magical feel as it was buried under 61 centimeters (24 inches) of snow on Saturday in one of the worst blizzards in the city's history.

The nearly 46 cm (18 in) recorded at Reagan National Airport was the fourth-highest storm total for the city. At nearby Dulles International Airport, the record was shattered with 81 cm (32 in) of snow.

The Pasig River Rehabilitation Report

THE Pasig River Rehabilitation Commission (PRRC) is on its way to meet the 12 targets recommended by the Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) to rehabilitate and restore the pristine condition of the Pasig River.

RECOVERING LOSS OF LIFE-SUPPORTING OCEAN RESOURCES
CONTROL OF WATER POLLUTION DURING RAINFALL
60.0% of the target 2.82 million cubic meters of contaminated river sediments were already dredged as part of the Pasig River Dredging Project. It will be completed in December 2010.

This project is implemented by the PRRC together with the State Police Monitoring Team and the Belgian contractor, Baggerwerken Oudeboord en Zoon (BZO).

REDUCING AND REMOVING SOLID WASTE FROM THE RIVER AND ITS TRIBUTARIES
10% or less (15 of the proposed 12 materials recovery facilities) are now operational.

There are 500 Pasig River patrolboats and environmental police deployed to patrol the river daily for 16 hours. Under the Pasig River cleanup drive, 5,696 cubic meters of garbage were collected from the river and its tributaries, while 6,638 cubic meters of water were also recovered. 17 out of 20 rivers were already cleaned, and garbage traps were installed in three creeks to gather floating river waste.

ENHANCEMENT OF EXISTING LAWS
The PRRC supports the strict implementation of the Water Code and other ordinances, except the one against the continuous operation of the all-gates.

It has been working with local officials in Metro Manila for the implementation of their respective zoning laws.

REMOVAL OF SUNKEN VESSELS
The PRRC is continuously removing all sunken vessels.

DEVELOPING LINEAR PARKS
46 linear parks were already constructed on 25 of the target 30 kilometers or 66% of the river main axis.

RELOCATION OF INFORMAL SETTLERS
In total, 2,073 out of the almost 16,113 informal-settler families have been relocated by the PRRC's housing projects. Also, 81 informal settlers received financial assistance worth P20,000 (per family) and were brought back to their home provinces under the Balik-Pinoy Program.

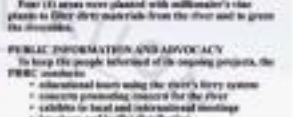

ESTABLISHMENT OF A WATER TRANSPORT SERVICE
432,400 passengers have been served by the Pasig River Ferry Service for the year 2009. The ferry system has 16 daily operational stations from Manila to Taguig City. The ferry system is managed by the PRRC, with its operator, Navstar Transport Services, Inc. (NTSI).

AVIGATION AND POLLUTION MONITORING
Seven (7) out of 27,144 fish of all species caught in traps were found to be contaminated with heavy metals and pesticides. These (7) out of 27,144 fish were found to be contaminated with heavy metals and pesticides. These (7) out of 27,144 fish were found to be contaminated with heavy metals and pesticides.

PHYTOREMEDIATION
MILLIONAIRE'S WOOD

PHYTOREMEDIATION
Four (4) areas were planted with millenium's tree plants to filter dirt materials from the river and to green the riverbanks.

PUBLIC INFORMATION AND ADVOCACY
To keep the people informed of the ongoing projects, the PRRC conducted:

- educational tours using the river's ferry system
- community monitoring, research for the river
- exhibits in local and international meetings
- seminars and lectures
- press releases/media coverage

Glitches mar mock polls in 2 schools

By Bureau Singapore
Angeline Tan

CEBU CITY—ELECTION OFFICIALS announced that the mock elections held in two schools in Cebu City were marred by major system glitches.

It was also observed that voters could also affect the transmission signals, especially in the mountainous barangays of Malabon.

Cebu election supervisor David Marcos Castiblanco, one of those who supervised the mock election at the Malabon Elementary School, said they had to use the GSM (Global System for Mobile Communications) satellite system because of the fluctuating mobile network signals in the village, which is 21 kilometers from the city proper. The fluctuating mobile phone signals could signal the delay of the transmission of the results of the voting.

in the Cebu City Board of Commissioners. The actual voting in Malabon was scheduled at 9 a.m., but the results were transmitted only at 9:50 a.m., he said.

Castiblanco said the fluctuating cellular signals from television news and newspaper photographers also added to the fluctuating network signals.

He said he would report this to the Commission on Election and Communication to take steps to take corrective or preventive actions to avoid the transmission of the results being fluctuated, at least in mountain areas.

Local elections were also being held, especially among older voters.

Castiblanco said a 70-year-old voter failed to fully declare the district office candidate, which resulted to the rejection of the ballot where it was issued in the District Court Office of the Provincial Court Office of the Provincial Court Office.

In the second run after the results were fully declared, the machine no longer entered the ballot.

Castiblanco said older voters who could hardly see the text on the ballot or read the name of candidates should bring eyeglasses or be assisted near-sighted problem or considered a disability that could allow a voter to get assistance from relatives.

In Malabon/Community School, however, all 100 already-pollinated voters, because of the school's only 50 but, are were accepted. One ballot was rejected because the voter accidentally marked the "None of the Above" box.

The mock election in Malabon went smoothly, with the results transmitted to the city board of commissioners at 9:50 a.m.

Cebu City north district election officer Maribel Torres, who served as assistant in the board during the mock election, said they were able to transmit the results to the Commission on Election and Communication at 9:50 a.m.

Meanwhile, the results to the Commission Office at 9:50 a.m.

James and Castiblanco confirmed that Cebu was again the first area to transmit its results to the central office.

While the first batch had been sent two weeks ago in urban areas of the country including in two remote villages in Cebu's town of Sagay, Cebu was the first to transmit its results.

James said this was one indication that they could expect a successful holding of the country's 10th national election in May.

Commission officials in Cebu ordered military and police officials, provincial, local, and national, to be present in the mock election, with the predicted registered voters in the area being 100.

Each barangay had 50 voters who participated in the mock polls.

Resolve cases vs Syjuco, Arenas asks Ombudsman

By Maria P. Burgos
Angeline Tan

CEBU CITY—SOCIETE ROSEMARIE "Rose" Arenas has asked her parents to file a complaint with the Office of the Ombudsman (OO) to resolve cases against her father, Senator Antonio Syjuco, and her mother, Senator Aurora Arenas.

Arenas, whose son, Antonio Syjuco, is a running against Syjuco for representation of Bulacan's second congressional district, said she was "outraged" with the cases against Syjuco have not been resolved, considering that there involved significant amounts of government funds.

"What is the Ombudsman doing? Why is it not pending? Why is nothing being done?" Arenas asked the Ombudsman.

She said there have already been complaints against Syjuco's alleged corruption and corruption involving Syjuco but she has not heard any action from the Office of the Ombudsman.

Arenas challenged the Ombudsman's decision to dismiss the cases.

Discontinued cases

"These are discontinued cases and not pending. What are you doing?" Syjuco has reportedly denied the charges and has accused his political rivals of instigating and pushing for the allegations. He has cited the provisions of the Malolos Constitution for the reasons for the complaints against him.

Among the cases that Arenas wants to be resolved is the plunder case filed by the Public Interest Law Independent Commission (PILIC), a private law firm, against Syjuco, who accused Syjuco of involvement in the alleged corruption in the purchase of T-shirt-making equipment.

The complaint filed in August last year alleged that the T-shirt-making equipment was purchased for P80,000,000.00. The average price paid for the T-shirt-making equipment was P100,000.00 per piece, according to a report of the Commission on Audit.

Plunder involves the theft or misuse of at least P50 million, according to law.

Syjuco has denied involvement in the alleged corruption but is investigating the case.

Syjuco has also filed a complaint with the Public Interest Law Independent Commission (PILIC) to investigate the purchase of the T-shirt-making equipment.

He has requested for separate investigations to be conducted by the Department of Justice (DOJ) and the National Bureau of Investigation (NBI).

Doubts

The Presidential Anti-Graft Commission (PAGC) had found Syjuco guilty of grave misconduct in 2008 after the granting of his book "Society for the Philippines," which cost P9.2 million but was printed without public bidding.

The PAGC had also filed the complaint for corruption against Syjuco in connection with the book project. But the decision was subsequently overturned by the Commission on Elections (COMELEC).

Arenas said the case should be resolved to ensure justice, and government especially of Syjuco in Syjuco's district.

"I believe he should be disqualified if the charges will be proven. As a legislator, he is betraying the people of the whole party," Arenas said.

Syjuco is the Lakas-Kampi candidate for congressman in Bulacan's 2nd district, while Arenas' son, Antonio, is a running against Syjuco for representation of Bulacan's second congressional district.

Arenas said she was the youngest daughter of Syjuco in the 1990s election. Her daughter, Syjuco's wife, Mrs. Rose, is a running against Syjuco in the 1990s election.

GMA still for Gibo, says Malacañang

"We have every reason to know him and to support him," Gibo said.

The former spokesperson advised the presidential candidates to leave the It's All About You of the program, saying that the law has been changed to run in the second vice-presidential election of Pangasinan.

"Please leave the Palace and the President out of this campaign," he said.

"We are not campaigning for anybody that level and places to set our own campaign and not to let anyone else do it for us," Gibo said.

The camp of former President Joseph Estrada yesterday said it was convinced that his camp was supporting Vilva.

"Obviously, the history that happened," former Gov. Ernesto Maceda, Estrada's chief campaigner, said the boycott. "There is no more people identified or close to him who are with Vilva."

Maceda cited Estrada's former aide Lapeña who he said was pro-Estrada and not pro-Vilva.

In Bulacan, the administration party is backing Vilva's campaign, former Gov. Manuel Domagala, Jr. said. He said he would support Vilva in the national level.

But Domagala's son, Eduardo Domagala, who is running for Congress in the province, had said that he "is engaged" to support Estrada but not necessarily agree that he would support Vilva in the national level.

GMA's option

With the 30-31 presidential election day, Gibo said as a free press he believes Vilva and Aquino, it is inevitable that his camp will have to leave Vilva, said President-elect Benigno Aquino III.

TYRANNY OF GUILT

We witnessed in the past few days a rising public indignation against an attempt of this administration in its dying days to extend power by proxy. We witnessed the brazen and sly attempt to pave the way for President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo to appoint the next Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

We have an administration adept at operating in the shadows trying to make a midnight appointment. Not content with appointing all but one of the men and women sitting in the High Court, this outgoing President desires nothing less than absolute domination even at the expense of violating our fundamental law.

We condemn this move to have the outgoing President appoint the next Chief Justice that also paves the way for the appointment of his replacement. This yields a Supreme Court of 15 Justices, all of whom were appointed by the same President. It is yet another manifestation of shameless impunity. It is yet another arrogant display of power. It is yet another breach of our trust. We see clearly through this brazen yet clumsy attempt to shield the guilty from accountability.

We are appalled to see brilliant minds so servile and to hear spin spinning from glib but forked tongues. They have all been reduced to peddle silly lies that insult their own intelligence.

We do not claim to be legal luminaries but we can all read and understand our fundamental law. The Chief Justice is a member of the Supreme Court. The President can only appoint a Chief Justice from a list of nominees submitted by the Judicial and Bar Council. Midnight appointments are prohibited by the Constitution. This ban stays until June 30. The next President has 45 days from assuming office on June 30 to appoint the next Chief Justice. Our Constitution is not the exclusive domain of lawyers. It is the most fundamental law that binds us all.

We call on anyone with ambition to lead our judicial institutions not to be seduced by power and shun any unconstitutional appointment. There is no honor in empty titles conferred by deceit. There is a price to pay for complicity in criminal acts for those who conspire in this midnight appointment and anyone who benefits from it.

We call on Chief Justice Reynato Puno to rise and meet this defining moment as his judicial career comes to a close. We ask for his strong moral leadership as Chairman of the Judicial and Bar Council and reject calls to transmit to this outgoing President the list of nominees for his replacement. Let not a tarnished and divided Supreme Court be his legacy to our nation.

We admire those who, with the courage of their convictions and in plain and simple words, make their intentions known without equivocation. We are inspired by people who take a stand against this tyranny of guilt.

We call on others aspiring to lead our country to likewise condemn in the strongest possible terms the acts of this administration that undermine judicial independence and further erode our democratic institutions. It is their bounden duty to do so. We ask them to also tell our people how they intend to deal with the excesses of this administration when they assume the mantle of leadership.

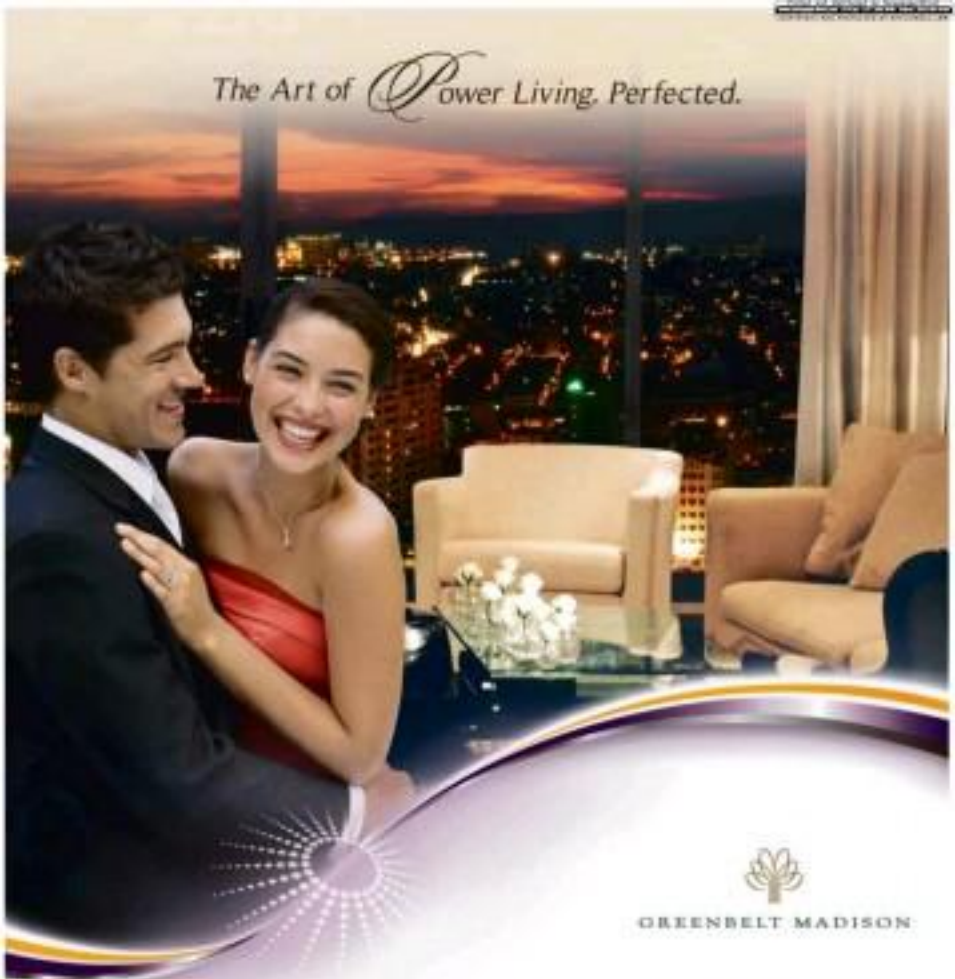

We find comfort knowing that the abuse will soon come to pass. We vow to work for a better future in the company of people who have the courage to speak truth to power.

We remain committed to work for good governance and the restoration of decency and propriety in public service.

We stand as one in defense of our Constitution and the Rule of Law.

Haitian lawyer for jailed US missionaries fired

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti—The attorney for 10 U.S. Catholics charged with child kidnapping is fired to settle the international case over infant and two teens freed, the lawyer who fired him said Saturday night. The Haitian lawyer, Lefebvre, directed the allegations, for a $50,000 fee, to a newspaper from the American Embassy in the city.

Observers: Loser in Ukraine election might not concede

KIEV, Ukraine—The loser in Ukraine's presidential runoff election probably won't concede defeat and may lose to rival Yulia Tymoshenko in a second round, observers said. On both campaigns accused each other of possible vote fraud. Pro-Tymoshenko opposition leader Viktor Yushchenko's victory, Tymoshenko points, showed of Prime Minister Viktor Yanukovich in the first round of voting on Jan. 17. Most analysts say Tymoshenko on Sunday will either concede and people should expect both sides to report to legal matters on the day and international election officials. "It's a head-on collision between the two sides," says a local analyst.

institutions to conduct the investigation. However, if Tymoshenko will not concede, then the case will likely be taken to court, says Valentin Ponomarev, director of Public Center for Applied Political Research.

Jury: Bayer must pay $1.5M to US sex farmers

ST. LOUIS—A federal civil jury has ordered the German conglomerate Bayer Corporation to pay $1.5 million to farmers in Missouri and Mississippi whose rice seedlings contaminated with a genetically altered strain. Friday's verdict was the second against Bayer Corporation for its failure to disclose to farmers when an experimental variety of rice that the company was testing infiltrated crops.

Teenage Spanish matador kills 6 bulls in 1 afternoon

CACERES, SPAIN—A 15-YEAR-OLD Spanish matador has killed six bulls in one afternoon, pulling off a feat normally attempted only by seasoned veterans and winning top prize for his skills—was from several to his first.

Juan Miguel Sanchez Alonso, who barely died from a heart attack during in Mexico in 2005, called himself a "novice" and a "brave" but not a "matador" when a program that took about two and a half hours yesterday.

A tall and slender boy who is also a promising matador in his own right, he showed off his skill in an arena called Plaza de los Toros, in the town of Caceres.

The bullfighting video goes by the stage name of Juan Miguel, named in his last performance with bull No. 5, a bullock that spurs that caught his attention.

After a difficult year, he finished off the bull with a double death blow from his sword, slicing it into a ring where it landed the bull's head.

Then it was over and the bull was killed. The crowd was silent, and Juan Miguel's victory was celebrated with a burst of applause.

It was a good afternoon of bullfighting, and people were not bored.

For the fifth bull, he was killed the animal's second eye, one of the bullfighting world's prize for a bull that dies. He took a double victory by winning the ring, showing the region in the crowd.

Alonso's father, who stepped into the ring, also Miguel fought his father's matador, a bullfighting legend, and is a powerful matador now, they both said.

Wearing a sparkling white suit of Spain with gold sequins that twinkled in the late afternoon sun, the young matador was greeted by a cheering bull, 1,000-year bullfighting in Girona, in Spain's northeast Catalonia region.

The average age for matadors in Spain is 25 to 30.

Many US jobless give up looking for work

MANY AMERICAN PEOPLE HAVE GIVE UP A SEARCH FOR EMPLOYMENT SINCE THE SLUMP OF THE UNEMPLOYMENT RATE. LOOKING FOR A JOB IS A HARD TASK.

The economy is growing, but it's creating few jobs. That's why the rate has stayed so high. It's a problem people who are looking for a job.

But the problem is not just the lack of jobs. It's also the fact that many people who are looking for a job are not getting any response from employers.

"I've been looking for a job for a long time," said one person. "I've sent out a lot of resumes, but I haven't heard from any of them."

The problem is not just the lack of jobs. It's also the fact that many people who are looking for a job are not getting any response from employers.

unemployment did double after the severe 1981-82 recession ended, but it's not as bad as it was in the 1930s, the study shows.

Some workers are considering it more practical to return to school, start a business or stay in their job at home until the job market improves, in some cases, it even makes financial sense to stop looking for work.

Joan Marston, for example, decided she would help her family more by looking for a job than by looking for a job that she would not be able to find in the current market.

Marston spent months looking for work in a receptionist at a local shop.

She and her husband ultimately decided that with two kids, her staying at home would make sense. It would save money, get money and time off from the kids, and get money and time off from the kids.

But she's not giving up on her job. "If you're just sitting there waiting for the company to call, you're getting paid to do it, it's not very profitable," she said.

Those looking for work have been hit hard by the competition for the few jobs that are available. Unemployment, on average, is rising for each job opening, according to the most recent Labor Department data. That's up from 1.7 million people per opening in December 2007, when the crisis began. And it's up from 1.5 million people per opening in January 2008.

Some of the reasons for the increase in the number of people looking for work are the fact that many people who are looking for a job are not getting any response from employers.

"I've been looking for a job for a long time," said one person. "I've sent out a lot of resumes, but I haven't heard from any of them."

First Pacific unit seen bagging SCTEx deal

BCDA to junk SMC appeal, issue decision on Feb. 11

By Devin C. Quinsin and Abigail L. Ho

THE STATE-OWNED BASES CONVERSION DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY (BCDA) may ask the Metro Pacific group—the lone eligible bidder for the Subic Bay Clark-Tarlac Expressway operations and maintenance (O&M) contract—to improve its proposal to meet the basic financial terms required during a recent auction.

The minimum financial requirement that Metro Pacific's subsidiary (Metro Pacific Corp. (MPTC)) must meet to bid the contract is equivalent to the BCDA's annual operations of P1.5 billion in the 30-year concessioned term that funded the country's longest tollway system prior to the bidding process.

The source said the hope was that the BCDA was now limited to ask MPTC to match the financial terms of reference to who has been contacted—concerns—a more detailed consultation with Concessionaire on Auto sales.

The BCDA is also poised to reject an appeal filed by Metro Pacific's corporate rival San Miguel Corp. for reconsideration in participating in the bidding.

But if MPTC does not match the selection requirements, the BCDA may call for a new round of bidding, the source added.

BCDA vice president for business development Adnan Doss and the government agency would give an update by Thursday. She claimed that BCDA had made up its mind on the issue, saying no update would be given.

Damned lies and statistics

THE RECENT INKBLEE FULL-page "Canada says sorry, Canada says again" all transportation supporters' achievements of Peter Lee Municipal Airport being named the quote attributed to 19th century British Prime Minister Benjamin Disraeli: "There are three kinds of lies: Lies damned lies, and statistics."

There are at least four ways to lie... as in the very basic mislead—with statistics. (1) Examine selectively. (2) Manipulate your axis. (3) Point that way in the wrong light, or (4) claim undue credit for their and others' appear to be manifested in the army of disinformation laid out for the public.

open members in their full-page spreads to share an idea or show we should all be eternally grateful in the current press.

Selective strategies

The most common trick is to use and present statistics selectively. There are a number of ways of doing this. One is to ignore data in the presentation of overall data. An item that people readily see through is the assertion that the 2009-10 breeding units provided under Arctophila match excellent under Arctophila match on Arctophila 200,000, but this consistently across the Arctophila had nine years to its against Arctophila on and Arctophila two, and a half-year. Arctophila average per year basis. Arctophila actually had the lowest performance at 20,777 units, against Arctophila 20,000, and Arctophila 20,000.

Another trick, it is often had, seems in reducing averages, is to be able to project a more positive picture than otherwise. So, item that must with wide variation is the claim that the high oil average annual rate of economic growth was achieved under Chavez (4.66 percent against Argentina's 3.3, Basso).

3.6, and Katsuki's 4.7 percent). But the same all admit that the 2009 data were not included in the averaging, doing so would bring her average down to 4.4 percent, just low as those around us.

But others have pointed out that the comparisons are not even appropriate in the first place, as the strategies for such a president are rather more very different decisions, like the housing data show. And I will no longer dwell on the ever more bombastic questions raised by economists and to some local living here on the similarity of Kennedy's GIs' answers, given suppression of inconsistencies with other multidimensionally constructed economic data.

Orbiting what matters

Analysed more to investigate its negative tendency to its delirious shyly call attention to key leaders in areas where the numbers are bad. Conspicuously absent from Arroyo's report card is any mention of official poverty and household income statistics, and understandably so. The picture the numbers give is not pretty. Since 2001, the number of Filipinos living below the poverty line has risen from 38 percent (24.6 million of families (1 to 30 percent, 126.8 percent of families) in 2008. Average real household income also fell 3 percent in the same period, and even that slight victory to the govern- ment now contends that the

This is of course a very real condition, as one could well argue that this is the one economic statistic that matters the most in Filipinas at large. No amount of economic growth or slowing inflation could truly matter if they fail to uplift the lower and reduce the numbers of the poor in our midst. And this is the single biggest Mack issue in the Arroyo presidency. Interestingly, the presidency of Joseph Estrada, who proclaimed himself "Tinang na tinangin," actually was a similar rise in poverty reported by official data. Poverty on the flip side actually rose from 53 percent (in 1997) to 54 percent of Filipinos (in 2006), translating to about 2.5 million additional Filipinos descending into poverty—a direct blow to the face of his claims of being champion of the poor.

Quilts numbers

But almost as an afterthought he is the claim that 14.2 million jobs were created during the pope's presidency. One only need check the official jobs data from the National Institute of Office, which conducts a quarterly Labor Force Survey (LPS). The LPS reported 27.8 million employed persons in October 2000, and 35.5 million in October 2009. Straight-forward arithmetic tells us that only 7.7 million additional jobs came about during Atreyu's march, thus, 1.1 has come out and how the number chaf could be almost twice as large in all likelihood, the States had simply added up all the self-reported land in many cases (obviously estimated) figures reported by different governmental agencies, including to improve the President's first random job placement program, succeeded—targeting that there are official program data against which all of these could be checked. And it seems that much of the other data cited in the ads are of the same self-reported nature originating from agencies and in general their results.

For example, of parenting activities in the wrong light is reporting rapid growth in OFW deployment as a positive accomplishment, when what it really means is that more and more Filipinos are being driven to leave their families to seek their fortunes abroad, for lack of opportunities here at home.

Finally, just one among many examples of changing airline habits is the general report that there were only four labor strikes in 1985, versus 18 in 1980. With the economy in recession in 1985, this is like claiming credit for the peace and quiet in the graveyard.

Factory prices of key manufactured goods down

Eighth straight month of decline, NSO says

By Ronald M. Domingo

FACTORY GATE PRICES OF KEY MANUFACTURED GOODS declined for the eighth straight month in November by 2.8 percent nationwide, according to the National Statistics Office.

NSO noted, however, that the rate of decline slowed in November due mainly to gains in the prices of petroleum and wood products compared to the previous year.

Factory-gate's monthly survey of factory prices covering 20 industrial groups of manufactured goods included in the national price index (NPI)—showed that prices of last year 27.2 percent while those for wood rose by 17.6 percent year-on-year in November.

It also noted several single-digit declines, including chemicals, footwear and weaving apparel, textiles, publishing and printing, beverages and leather products.

On the other hand, prices of Furniture and fixtures, transport means at 35.2 percent, Double-digit drops were also observed in basic metals, 15.4 percent, miscellaneous manufactured items, 12.6 percent, electrical machinery, 12.4 percent, fabricated metal, 12.3 percent, and paper products, 11.4 percent.

Meanwhile, on other sectors increased prices in single-digit rates, mainly on electrical machinery, food, miscellaneous transport equipment, vehicles, materials for minerals and rubber and plastic products.

On a month-to-month basis, the NPI fell by 0.3 percent to November in eight sectors reported price decreases, with petroleum products leading the most at 2.3 percent.

The other eight factors were in smaller increments, miscellaneous manufactured food materials being, least metals, leather goods, equipment, chemicals and fabricated metal products.

Others included four subgroups led by rubber and plastic products, prices of which rose 2.5 percent on average.

Other groups were footwear and weaving apparel, 2 percent; miscellaneous machinery, 1.2 percent; and furniture and fixtures, 0.2 percent.

Hardly any change was observed in eight sectors, including electrical machinery, textiles, leather, tobacco, wood, publishing and printing, beverages and paper.

5 Luzon power plants up for repair

By Arly B. Bano

FIVE LARGE POWER PLANTS IN LUZON will have to shut down for some repairs and maintenance checks, according to documents from National Grid Corporation of the Philippines (NGCP).

Three power facilities are the 1,300 megawatt (MW) Bataan natural gas-fired power plant in Batangas, 400 MW coal-fired facility at Quezon Power Plant, Palawan, Co., 1,000 MW Co. Bataan gas facility, and 500 MW Guagua coal plant and the 700-MW Pangasinan coal facility.

These maintenance shutdowns will shut out Bataan and Quezon from being used by the NGCP to ensure that the two generators will be able to run at the same time. This is for period is report of the outgoing power interconnectivity last Jan. 31, which was caused by the breakdown of a generator unit in the Bataan power plant.

Other power plants would not undergo the loss of power from Bataan because some were undergoing maintenance work.

Energy Secretary Angelo T. Reyes earlier appointed to power generation companies to coordinate, coordinate, coordinate, particularly during the Bataan shutdown.

"What we just want is for the maintenance shutdowns to be properly scheduled, and not done when they just want to, but when it is scheduled maintenance or an property intended to ensure there are no breakdowns of plants. It's a matter of proper scheduling and coordination and it impacts on the public service," Reyes explained.

The shutdown shutdowns, last week, on some power facilities and the Bataan shutdowns have put a strain on the power supply of the Luzon grid.

As of Feb. 6, electricity peaked a power source of 3,944 MW while Bataan has a capacity 1,300 MW. Visayas, however, has a reserve deficit of about 120 MW, while Mindanao has a power reserve of about 1,200 MW, according to NGCP.

Global firms take virtual route

By Miguel L. Ho

AS THE WORLD BECOMES FLATTER, global firms are taking a virtual route to reach the world's end, with some global leaders now considering having "virtual offices" rather than physical ones.

In a recent report, titled "Managing virtual teams: Taking a more strategic approach," the Economist Intelligence Unit found that 70 percent of the more than 300 global executives it polled had worked in, or was still working in, virtual teams.

The EIU Group's report defined a virtual team as a group of geographically dispersed people using Internet or e-mail to carry out the project or task, with no physical office space.

Only 12 percent of the respondents said their virtual teams were in place to increase flexibility in the workplace, and just 5 percent said the virtual teams were in place to reduce costs.

"Virtual teams are absolutely essential to the success of many organizations," said the report.

Article on NCCA arts funding clarified

DISAPPOINTED

My article on the initial findings of the NCCA Indicative Impact Assessment, which appeared in the Lifestyle section of the Philippine Daily Inquirer on Monday, Feb. 1, was not as deep as I wanted to digress, discuss or describe the complexity of the process.

Vince Leticia and reporter from the Manila Bulletin of the National Commission on Culture and the Arts.

In the article, clearly stated was not included in the opening paragraph. In fact, Leticia's name was not mentioned in any way at all, and Golden-Abrera's name was mentioned only in relation to her quote, which seemed to be published in the article.

There was no intention on my part to imply that there leadership or management was better in the initial findings of the study.

The quote "In where did the money go?" was not within the scope of the article. I apologize for the pain and confusion that the published piece brought. The newspaper has limited space, and I, please, please see the following:

'Princess and the Frog': Throwback to classic Disney animation

By Jordan Mari S. De Leon
Contributor

IN AN ERA WHEN 3-D animated films and special effects dominate the screen, it's hard to imagine how a 2-D film would stand out among the 3-D giants.

Ben Jones' "The Princess and the Frog" (recently based on E.B. White's book "The Frog Princess") proves the right combination of a story plus a strong character and unique hand-drawn animation can produce a timeless classic.

Set in the life of Tiana Olanza, the film tells the story of Tiana (voiced by Anika Noni Rose), a talented and hard-working girl who dreams of having her own restaurant, which has fallen into disrepair. She must first learn to overcome her dream, the world of Prince Naveen (voiced by Bruno Mars), a prince who is a frog by day and a handsome prince by night.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine if there were differences in the prevalence of dental caries between children who had been exposed to fluoride toothpaste and those who had not. The study was conducted in a community-based setting in a low-income area of New York City. A total of 1,000 children aged 6-12 years were examined by dentists. The results showed that the prevalence of dental caries was significantly higher in the group that had not used fluoride toothpaste compared to the group that had used it.

THE EXHIBIT, "TREATY to Shunien Shoukai Ya-cheng" (Liaison—Politic Friendship of the University of Santo Tomas), will open tomorrow, Feb. 9, 8 a.m., at the USF Museum of Arts and Sciences.

The exhibit chronicles the 30 years that Lapointe served as a fire art leader at UFT, from 1966 to 1992, when he returned to his roots as a union representative of artists, including National Artists Association (NAA) members and Anne Kishner.

The exhibit will also be shown at the UST Santa Angeles Gallery (Feb. 11-12) and the UST Sigurd de Banzoban-Cruz Library (Feb. 11-12), after which the Philippine Association of Museums Inc. will tour it around the country.

The author is indebted to Mary Ann Holmbeck.

"Living Culture: Contemporary Indian and Inuit Art" showcases the field of traditionalist Indian art, as adapted by the current crop of artists. It is a mix of works of SM and AW. The items on exhibit—diamond, jewelry, stoles, prints, and scarves—are highly fashion-like contemporary pieces bearing marks of traditional Indian through the use of bold colors and patterns, and embellishment techniques such as beadwork, embroidery, beading and quilting. Shows in SM Magellan Museum, Feb. 6-11, and at The Black SM City North Plaza, Feb. 18-22. Viewing Exhibitions of a series showing line art and exhibits of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Feb. 12-13.

Dancing to ballads

By Felix A. Torres
Contributor

OUR OLD FASHIONED BALLADS ARE still being danced to, but the way we dance to them has changed.

In the past, couples would actually glide from the dance floor to the stage and back, often with a very strong audience reaction.

But the music has changed. The ballads are now more of a background music, often with a very strong audience reaction. The music has changed. The ballads are now more of a background music, often with a very strong audience reaction.

New Ovi Maps with free navigation races past 1 million downloads in a week

New Ovi Maps with free navigation races past 1 million downloads in a week.

ESPOO - Nokia has today announced that since the 21st Jan. 2010 launch of the new version of Ovi Maps with free navigation, there have been over 1.4 million downloads. The new version of Ovi Maps with free navigation has been downloaded just over one week after the launch.

"We're celebrating a download of around 24 hours a day" said Anssi Rautala, Executive Vice President, Nokia. "When we announced free with Ovi Maps navigation we knew it would be a game-changer. The number of people now using their Nokia for navigation, and as a result, look for more location-based services, is growing faster than ever as predicted."

The success of the new version of Ovi Maps is a key part of Nokia's strategy to lead the market in mobile maps, navigation and location-based services. By leveraging its investment in HERE, Nokia has been able to remove the costs associated with navigation for drivers and pedestrians and is quickly achieving a massive user base to which it can offer new location features, content and services.

"This is great news for our 3rd party application developers. Within a matter of days there is an installed base of more than 1 million active users all potentially hungry for new and innovative location-aware apps," continued Anssi Rautala. "For the operators, there is a growing opportunity to sell more data plans and a complete navigation package to existing and new customers."

As of 21 January 2010 the top ten countries downloading the new version of Ovi Maps were: China, Italy, UK, Germany and Spain. The top five most popular Nokia services installing the download were: Nokia 5830i, Nokia 5800, Nokia 5800, Nokia 5800, Nokia 5800.

"There is a huge appetite for GPS navigation on mobile phones. We estimate there were already 25.9 million people actively using GPS navigation on their mobile phones at the end of 2009," said Chris Jones, VP & Principal Analyst at research firm Canalys.

From next month, all new Nokia GPS-enabled smartphones will include free navigation with local country map data, with high-speed and drive navigation and access to Lonely Planet and Michelin travel guides of no cost.

Ovi Maps covers more than 180 countries with car and pedestrian navigation for 74 countries, in 44 languages, and traffic information for more than 10 countries. There are more than 4000 3D landmarks, 600 cities around the world, Lonely Planet and Michelin guides have information on more than 1,000 destinations globally.

San Pedro's works featured at PPO concert

NATIONAL ARTIST FOR MUSIC Ludo San Pedro's immortal works will be featured in the sixth concert series of the Philippine Philharmonic Orchestra (PPO) Feb. 11, at 8 p.m., at the Cultural Center of the Philippines' Main Theater.

Lead professor is soprano Frederica Alecci, in concert with the music director, Joaquin. The concert coincides with the 10th anniversary of the late luso-Portuguese.

The program includes San Pedro's "Tang Halang ng Inang" (An Anguish of the Mother), "Lupang Inang" (Motherland), "Lupang Inang" (Motherland), "Lupang Inang" (Motherland), and "Lupang Inang" (Motherland).

Medina is a graduate of Bachelor of Music Performance from the University of the South, (BET) Conservatory of Music, and professor of the Conservatory.

She won first prize in the 2007 National Music Competition for Young Artists (Classical), later Category C. She was featured as soloist in the "National" and the "National" Grand Finals with the PPO, conducted by the acclaimed British conductor David Parry.

She played Italy in "The Italian" (The Italian), and the "The Italian" (The Italian), and the "The Italian" (The Italian), and the "The Italian" (The Italian), and the "The Italian" (The Italian).

In 1999, he represented the Philippines in the 4th International Competition for Young Conductors held in Garmisch, France, where he emerged as one of the Top 10 out of 175 candidates representing 41 countries (to date, the highest place attained by a Filipino conductor in an international conducting competition).

He was also the music director and conductor of the UP Chamber Orchestra (1999-2000), and the music director and principal conductor of the Philippine National Symphony Orchestra, founded by San Pedro, in 2001. He and his colleagues represent us to the Philippine National Symphony Orchestra (PNSO) in Thailand in October 2008 (celebration music) and November 2008 (Banda).

He was also the music director and conductor of the UP Chamber Orchestra (1999-2000), and the music director and principal conductor of the Philippine National Symphony Orchestra, founded by San Pedro, in 2001.

decade before World War II, with the country in the grip of martial law. This is, however, only an approximation.

The play opens in Turgenev's office, where Turgenev, Cultural Center of the Philippines, Feb. 11, at 8 p.m., will run for four weeks.

Early on, Turgenev plays the role of the "Alejo" (the star role) in the play, which is a historical fiction.

The military play ends with Chekhov's line: "The Russian military was not only a military, but a political force."

Obviously the Philippines will not be the same (and now) but not the same.

"We noted that one of Chekhov's plays, 'The Cherry Orchard' and 'The Three Sisters' play, anticipated the revolution in Russia. As a technology, the characters didn't necessarily address the issue, but it was a political issue in Russian history. It is somehow given substance to the play's theme of the 'revolution'."

The Russian Revolution, he continued, "was a failed revolution." It was a failed revolution, he said.

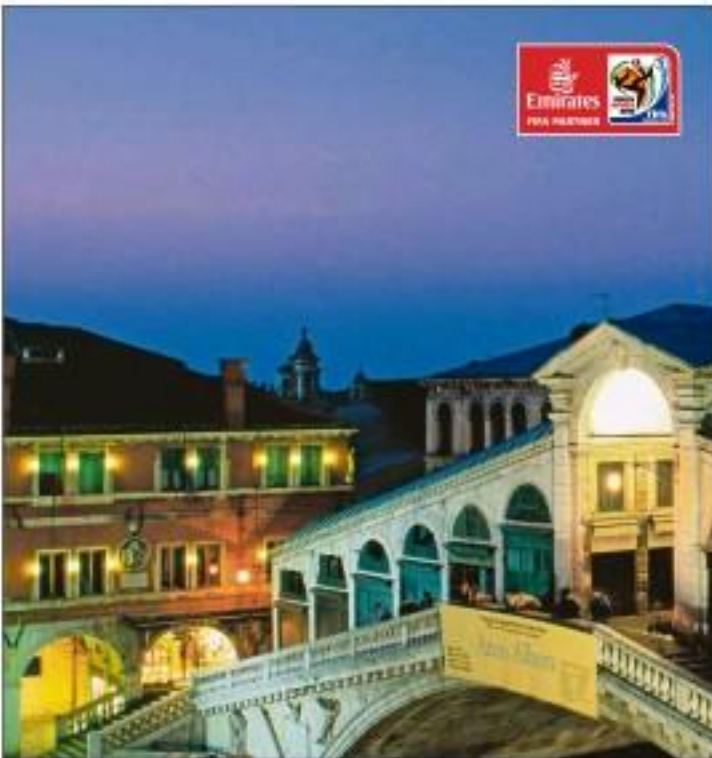

For Turgenev, who had been in the Philippines, I wanted to be in the Philippines. The revolution was not only a revolution, but a political issue in the Philippines.

IT WAS SUCH A DELIGHT TO INTERVIEW "American Idol" judge Allen, Adkins and Dolly Wood with my newspaper colleagues on the radio show "My Favorites" on P127.7. The group...

How fun! It's so exciting to be spread by the radio. He's already "American Idol" who's married. There's his wife Katy got pregnant of his first "shot" at 18. He says "She keeps me sane. Without her, I would be a wreck." He admitted that he never expected to win "Idol" and that he wouldn't seek for the competition to end so that he could go back to his career. But after being on the show, he would be sure to be there if it went to be.
